

Hellenic Cultural Foundation

The Hellenic Cultural Foundation of Tucson is pleased to congratulate the 2022 recipients of scholarships and awards for Greek studies at the University of Arizona.

Undergraduate Awardees

- Brianna Della Valle, majoring in Philosophy and Classical Languages, awarded a James P. Sfarnas Scholarship for ancient Greek and New Testament studies.
- Cleoniki Demetriou, Biology major, for continued study of Modern Greek language.
- Viktor Dozier, majoring in Classics and Studio Art, for summer course work in Greek history and Christianity in the Greco-Roman world.
- Melissa Kontogiannis, majoring in Chemistry, Environmental Science, and Planetary Science, awarded the Ariana Mercedes Economou Prize for Excellence in Modern Greek Language Studies.
- Justin Langlois, majoring in Classics and Anthropology, to begin Modern Greek and for continued study of ancient Greek language and archaeology.
- Ruby Staczek, majoring in Classical Languages and Philosophy, awarded a James P. Sfarnas Scholarship for continued study of ancient Greek language.

Graduate Student Awardees

- Allyson Blanck, M.A. student in Classical Archaeology, for thesis work and archaeological fieldwork.
- Katrina Kuxhausen, M.A. student in Classical Archaeology, awarded a James P. Sfarnas Scholarship for participation in the Mt. Lykaion Excavation and Survey Project.
- Savannah Long, M.A. student in Classical Archaeology, awarded a James P. Sfarnas Scholarship for participation in the Mt. Lykaion Excavation and Survey Project.
- Rebecca Sanders, M.A. student in Ancient History, for participation in the Mt. Lykaion Excavation and Survey Project.
- Lauren Tomanelli, Ph.D. student in Anthropology, awarded the Chris Limberis Fieldwork Scholarship for participation in the Mt. Lykaion Excavation and Survey Project.